

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A printed circuit board is produced by drawing a pattern on a substrate by an ink comprising a dispersion of fine particles of a metal oxide or hydroxide; and reducing at least part of the fine particles of a 5 metal oxide or hydroxide to a metal to form a conductive pattern.